"Ma and Pa Ostrich have a clutch of eggs that are almost ready to hatch. But while Ma Ostrich is out for her morning stroll, another egg rolls in front of her so she kindly takes it home to be with her own. Soon her own chicks hatch, as does the stranger chick, who they call Taka. He is welcomed into the family and treated exactly as one of their own. But no matter how much he tries to do the same things as his playmates, he struggles to do what they do and looks odd too. What's more, he has a constant longing to stretch his wings and fly up into the sky. But the ostrich family fear that he will come to terrible harm and stop him from flying. After all, ostriches simply don't fly. It isn't long before a terrible drought begins and the ostrich family are desperate for water. Taka wants to help and says if they'll allow him, he could fly until he can find a place where there is water. And sure enough, that is what Taka does. It's then that the ostriches realise that Taka isn't really an ostrich at all but a magnificent eagle. These three stories are sure to delight a child's imagination while warming the reader's heart. A classic collection of stories showcasing some of India's best-known writers After a hesitant start towards the end of the nineteenth century, short fiction in Malayalam came into its own in the 1930s. Since then, writer has experimented with content, style and language to give the genre a unique standing in contemporary Indian literature as perhaps the most translated, not just into English and other Indian languages but also into other media such as film and television. From Vaikom Muhammed Basheer and O. Vijayan to Kamamla Das and Sarah Joesph, this volume brings together an extraordinary range of writers and themes. There are among others, M.T. Vasudevan Mair's 'Oppol', a story about childhood innocence and loss, which was made into award-winning film, Paul Zacharia's 'Bhaskara Pattelar and my Life' a brilliant psychological examination of the master-slave dialectic; Lalithambika

Antherjanam's path-breaking 'Goddess of Revenge' in which a young Namboodiri woman becomes a prostitute to expose the hypocrisy of her husband and their rigidly orthodox community; and N.S. Madhavan's classic story of an upper-caste widow who finds redemption in the forbidden touch of a Pulaya. Translated with flair and integrity, these stories capture the vibrancy of a literary culture at its creative best. Streams of events that take us to where we are in our lives are a collective, realized upon reflection in previous volumes of thought or journal entries. It's with near reality and obstruction defying tenacity we carry on, and change tracks as needed to maintain forward progress. In the process of reaching our own goals we adapt, rise, and fall with the tides, never losing sight of or becoming derailed from our personal mission en-route. This volume is part autobiographical in personal experiences and barely fictionalized likenesses of those who've crossed the author's path, tells of regular daily routines, loftier philosophizing moments, oddball observations, and socially charged, human rights inspired reflections. It accounts for smaller side-missions that were taken on temporarily, to not lose focus of the primary, big picture goal, learning as we go along. This volume is a continuation of where the first seven's not entirely planned, but gladly accepted, evolutionary path are taking the author. The book is neither a tale of instruction nor a recommendation regarding flying. It can only be described as an amazing journey taken by an ordinary woman. As she had an obvious fear of heights, the book reveals how she was tricked by her flying-loving husband into learning how to fly airplanes! Never in her wildest dreams could she imagine sitting in the left seat of a small airplane, experiencing extreme terror as the plane leaves the ground for the first time. Share the cockpit with her on a solo flight when she encountered powerful winds gusting near forty-five knots that exceeded anything she had encountered, with her instructor aboard. Today, in 2018, we can celebrate with her as she is as comfortable behind the wheel of an automobile as she is in the cockpit of an airplane. Pictures of a baby bird navigating life for the first time accompany philosophical musings on success and self-reliance. Life in the Skies is a unique compendium of tips, advice, anecdotes and tales from the storied career of life-long pilot, Captain Lim Khoy Hing. Captain Lim provides insights into every aspect of air travel – informing passengers of all the hidden mysteries of airplane safety and regulations, enlightening those who wonder how someone trains and becomes an international airline pilot, and entertaining readers throughout with However, she hears from her friends and family that it's not possible. Little Fish isn't discouraged; she tries and tries again, until one day, she flies right out the of water! She flies past animals on land, past birds in the sky, and even out of Earth's atmosphere. Meanwhile, there's Little Bird, who just wants to be able to swim. Colorful, textured illustrations bring this sweet story of determination to life. Readers will learn the power of believing in themselves and reaching their full potential. The book demonstrates love, friendship, and teamwork between a tree who wishes to see the world and the forest animals who want to help make her dream come true. Although her roots are buried deep in Mother Earth, her team of furry friends she considers family will do everything they can to see it through. Will Mother Nature help them in this endeavor? Will she be freed to experience exciting adventures? Or perhaps there is a bigger purpose, a mission far more important than flying? Where are your wings? Yes. I am asking you.
